LATIN AMERICAN STUDIES MAJOR

The Bachelor of Latin American Studies curriculum focuses on achieving an interdisciplinary understanding of the region relative to an increasingly globalizing world. Under an advisor’s supervision, students write their own majors, selecting electives from more than twenty cooperating departments taught by some seventy affiliated faculty specializing in Latin America. The program strives to develop critical thinking, intercultural competency and research, analytical and communicative skills. The major requires a minimum of 30 credit hours in 10 Latin American content courses. Courses are selected from the various departments offering classes in the field as well as from Latin American Studies.

- LAST 4000 (https://catalog.tulane.edu/catalog-18-19/courses/html-cat/LAST4000.html) - Core Seminar

Additional Information

Six of the remaining seven Latin American content electives must be at the 2000-level or higher. Finally, three must be at the 6000-level. Students who take at least 20 college credits in 7 courses with Latin American content while on academic programs in Latin America approved by Tulane are required to take only two courses at the 6000-level. All 6000-level coursework for the major must be taken in residence at Tulane University; courses taken abroad will not count toward this requirement.

Concentrations

Five elective courses must concentrate on one of the themes that are the foundation of the interdisciplinary Latin American Studies program at Tulane. The concentration system serves to focus the coursework of Latin American Studies majors and minors. Working with the Undergraduate Adviser, students may choose one of the following:

1. Creativity
2. Encounter
3. Exchange
4. Identity
5. Land
6. Nation
7. People
8. Welfare

There are no specific required classes for any single concentration. Students may choose from a wide variety of Latin American content electives taught in numerous disciplines and departments according to their own conception of the concentration. Students will work closely with the undergraduate adviser to select appropriate classes and construct a coherent concentration.

Language Requirement

Latin American Studies majors must demonstrate linguistic competency in either Spanish or Portuguese. This can be done in one of three ways:

1. Complete with a passing grade at least one course at the 4000-level or higher in Spanish or Portuguese
2. Complete with passing grades at least one semester of coursework in Spanish or Portuguese on a study abroad program
3. Place into the 6000-level on the language test administered by the Department of Spanish and Portuguese Note that language classes below the 3100-level do not count as electives for the Latin American Studies major or minor programs.

Sample Courses by Concentration

Note that these lists are just an example of courses that could apply to a concentration. They are not comprehensive and do not account for all of the courses offered in each department nor those that might be offered as special topics in the departments or Latin American Studies. Courses taken abroad and on Tulane summer programs can also count toward the concentrations.
