Student enrolled in Tulane School of Law may apply for the joint JD/MHA degree. The joint degree requires students to complete all requirements in both schools; students may share 10 credits that count toward both degrees. Students should then work closely with advisors in both schools for course selection and advising.

The MHA is a 60 credit degree program plus a plus a 950-hour administrative residency. (See the MHA degree requirements).

The MPH in health policy is an option for the joint JD/MHA degree program.
